

HOME PAGE

This is the home page draft for my space called City Bakery. When you click on the image it will zoom in to an image of the door and it will open and then you will be inside of the cafe.

Nice
Typography

(Cafe sounds will play once this page has loaded.)

PAGE 2

Once inside there are a couple of things that grab your attention. The cups with the nice typography, the ambiance of the cafe, the balloons and the marshmallows. Before, grabbing a bite to eat, you decide to take a closer look by clicking on the items.

(When you click the cups to take a look or picture, it will change pages to a more closeup view.)

PAGE 3

When the user clicks on the cups, it zooms in to a zoomed in version of the cups, the user can zoom in more, send it to instagram or continue browsing the cafe.

PAGE 4

This is a zoomed in version of the cups. Every item that is clickable food or drink wise will allow you to zoom in.

PAGE 5

This page allows the user to see the menu via conveyor belt or continue looking around the cafe.

(When you click an item, it will take you to another page with a closeup of the item as well as a description.)

(Conveyor belt of food for menu browsing)

This cafe does not have a conveyor belt. But, my idea for this space is for web users to see the menu via conveyor belt and select an item, once the item is selected, it will provide the name of the item and the price.
